From Our Founders

Hello!

There is a reason why we are called America's Largest Personal Injury Law Firm. Challenging the status quo at every turn, we have changed how law is practiced, managed, and marketed. Inch by inch, task by task, we’ve rethought every piece of the litigation process to make it more efficient for everyone – clients, attorneys, case staff, and partners – allowing us to help more people and fight for better results, faster. Through our staunch “people-first” philosophy, we’ve made our clients the heartbeat of our firm, never losing sight of why we do this work.

By doing things differently, we have given our clients – often after the worst has happened – a fighting chance at justice, the compensation they fairly deserve, and a guide to getting their lives back on track.

In the following pages, we detail what it took three decades to build: A practice that is “for the people, not the powerful.” It outlines how we out-gunned, out-resourced and out-smarted our opposition – protecting the rights of over 300,000 clients and their families and recovering over $10 billion in the process.

This is just the beginning. We are looking forward to the next great wave of Morgan & Morgan, with more locations, more attorneys and a bigger support staff. We have been crafting the future of personal injury law for 34 years, and we are not about to stop.

We’re happy to have you along for the ride.

FOR THE PEOPLE

The Morgan Story

Morgan & Morgan was founded by John Morgan in 1988. Its purpose and mission is inspired by John's brother, Tim, who suffered a tragic workplace accident as a senior in high school that left him paraplegic for the rest of his life. John was just a sophomore in high school. Unfortunately, John's family hired the wrong lawyer, and they ended up settling on a lowball offer that was grossly inadequate to provide for Tim's care. From then on, John vowed to do better "for the people, not the powerful." Now, over 30 years later, he has built America's Largest Personal Injury Firm with an army of attorneys and support staff committed to fulfilling that promise: We'll go up against the big companies, hold truth to power and fight to ensure justice and dignity for all.

LISTEN TO THE WINNING JINGLE:

The Morgan Difference

Large corporations, from insurance companies to employers, tend to take advantage of everyday Americans.

OUR GOAL IS to reach more and more people facing predatory practices, whether that's insurance lowballing claims or corporations stacked with lawyers that make an individual's efforts seem hopeless.

The people deserve to have someone in their corner, and our attorneys work tirelessly to protect their rights. Morgan & Morgan started out as a local firm with a small staff. Although that's changed in the past 30 years, our mission has not: To fight for the best results for every client, no matter what it takes.

Our attorneys are well-versed in the tactics these companies use to keep people from fair compensation. And over the years, our team has built a reputation for fighting back and never settling for less than what our clients deserve — even if it means going to trial. And insurance companies know who we are, bringing more value to our clients' cases.

From the beginning, Morgan & Morgan has put people before profit. No matter how large or small the case, our attorneys always advocate for full and fair compensation.

All law firms are not the same;
there's only one Morgan & Morgan.

Here’s how we do it

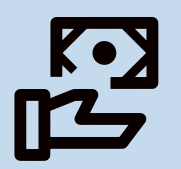

Full & Fair Compensation

Our trial-ready lawyers are not afraid to go extra lengths to fight to get our clients what they’re due. We know what our clients deserve — and we have the resources, firepower and wherewithal to go the extra mile to get it.

Highly Specialized Representation

At Morgan & Morgan, we value expertise, which is why our attorneys know the ins and outs of their specific litigation — in all 50 practice areas. Each of our lawyers is not a “Jack of All Trades.” Our attorneys live and breathe the specific litigation of any case.

A Lifeline When It’s Needed

Our attorneys fight for full and fair compensation, but there’s more to it than getting the full dollar amount; it’s equally important that the funds are available as soon as possible. Suffering an injury or other harm is stressful enough, but watching bills pile up can only make the stress worse. Our law firm is dedicated to getting our clients full compensation as fast as possible, which is why we respond to case evaluation requests with lightning speed.

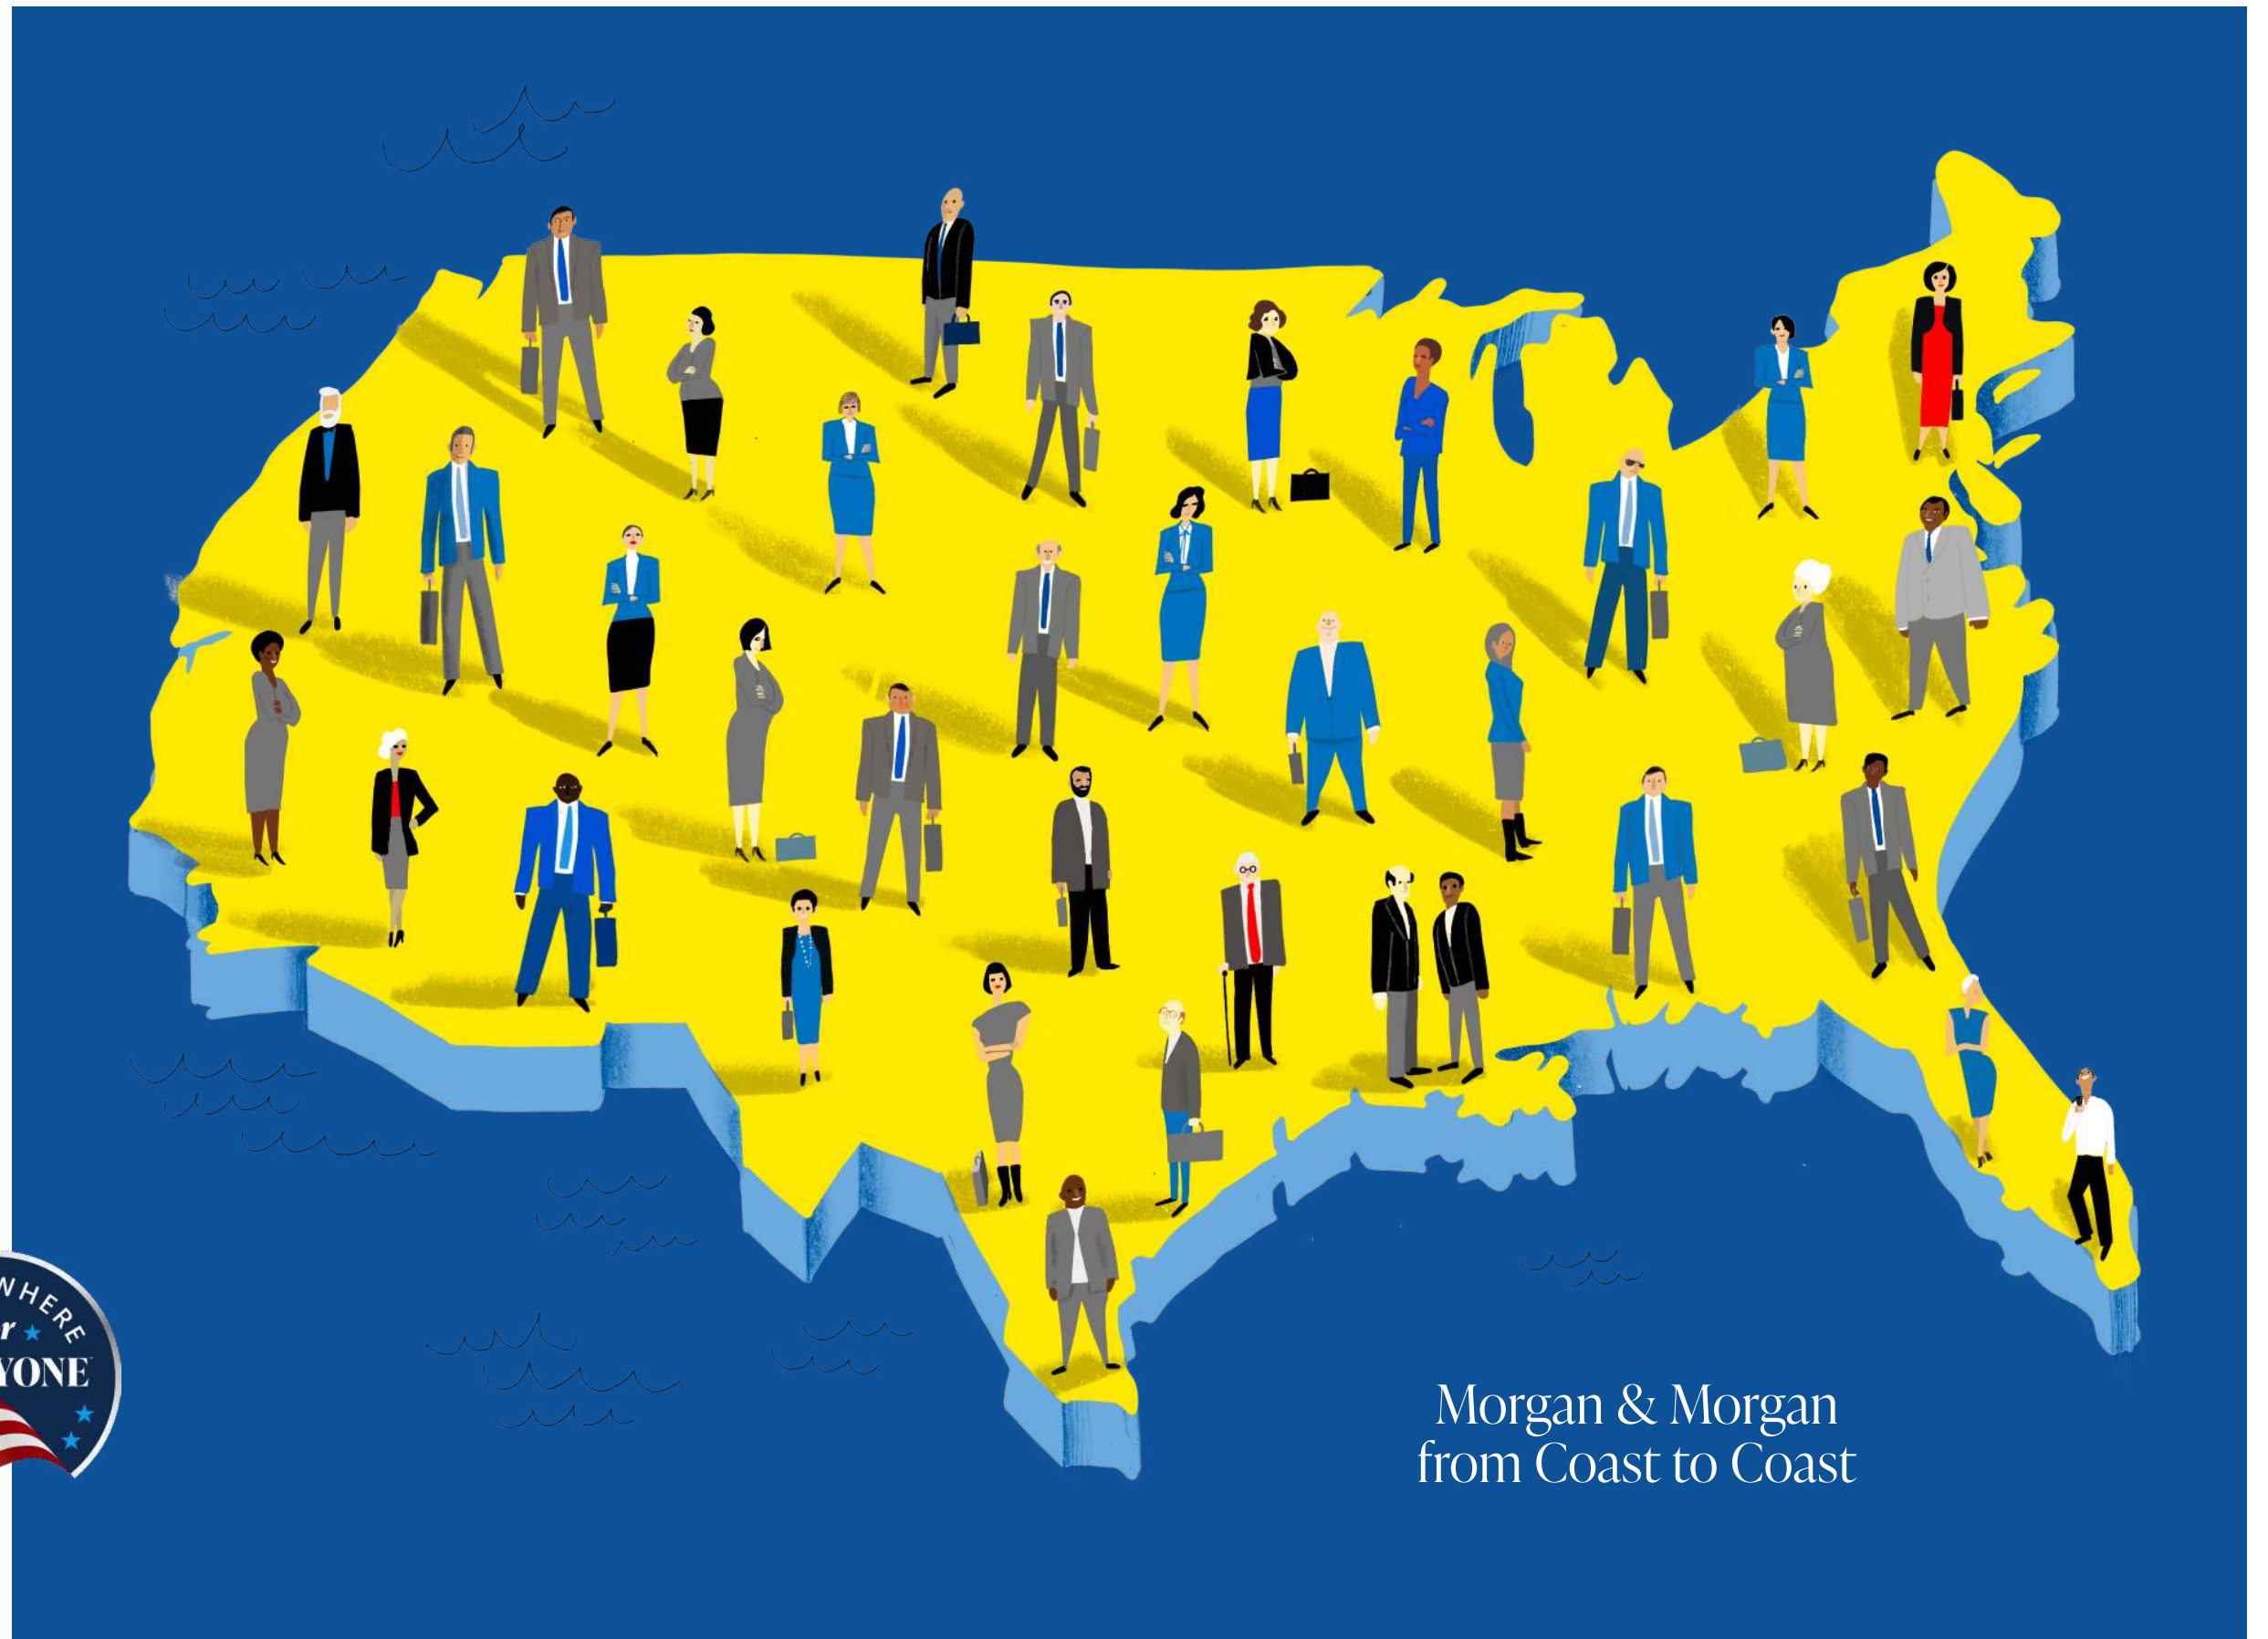

For The Family

Morgan & Morgan is built on a commitment to family, which is why our 3,500-member team treats every client like the newest member of ours. We know that injuries can have lifetime consequences and the road to recovery can be complicated and overwhelming. With this in mind, we fight to make the process as painless as possible so our clients can put a bad situation behind them and get their lives back together. Our attorneys and case staff keep in close contact with our clients from signup to settlement and beyond, ensuring compassionate care through every step of the process.

National Reach, Local Presence

Over the past 30+ years, Morgan & Morgan has expanded tremendously. But no matter how big we get, our dedication to a consistent experience with each client remains the same. Wherever people are, they have access to our trusted representation and unwavering treatment in their time of need.

Better still, our Case Control Center is available 24/7, so clients can reach us anytime. We also offer self-signup technology and an online case evaluator, making the onboarding process quick and easy.

Revolutionizing How Legal Services Are Delivered

For years, lawyers lacked a truly integrated and flexible platform that enabled them to standardize their work.

While other industries were embracing technology to become more efficient and data-driven, the legal industry was still reliant on spreadsheets, physical file cabinets and multiple one-trick technology solutions to manage their departments and businesses.

Over the past decades, Morgan & Morgan has made technology a priority, adapting the best platform technology in existence to the unique nuances of the legal industry. Through streamlining and standardizing our services across our locations, we ensure that every Morgan & Morgan client receives our signature service wherever they are.

Putting tech to work for our clients

Thanks to a host of integration applications, Morgan & Morgan was able to remain 100% operational through Covid-19 lockdowns. We continue to use technology to make our services accessible and convenient for our clients and partners. Here are just a few of the programs we have in our toolbox:

eSign: Clients can quickly and safely sign retainers, settlements, and other key documents through this software.

eNotary: Rather than go to the bank, clients can have their documents notarized with one click.

Scans: Our legal team processes client requests and scans important documents via our digital mailroom.

Contactless Negotiations: Our attorneys can negotiate a favorable settlement, even from behind a computer screen.

Teleconferencing: If they choose to, clients can teleconference with their legal team via Zoom or alternative platforms.

Direct Deposit Settlements: Clients can receive their settlement by direct deposit rather than wait for a check in the mail.

Text & Email: Clients can receive updates and reach out to their legal team through text messages and emails.

More Moments

Real people. Real families. Just like ours. This is how we approach every case, of every size. Our aim is to ensure our clients have access to the help they need to live pain-free, have mobility and get peace of mind to pursue their dreams — and the energy to enjoy their children, grandchildren and retirements. Our goal is singular: To get our clients more of those moments that matter most.

These are their stories.

CHRISTINE

A Firefighter's Wife's Fight for Justice

Every single day in the United States, doctors perform hundreds of thousands of surgical procedures. In each case, patients place their lives in what they believe to be the capable hands of medical professionals. Unfortunately, even seemingly simple and routine procedures sometimes go horribly wrong.

John and Christine first met at a bowling alley when they were 15 and were married on February 16, 1980. John then went on to serve as a firefighter in Daytona Beach, Florida for two decades, starting as a firefighter EMT and working up the ranks to lieutenant before retiring in 2007.

As a healthy 55-year-old man with a family history of colon cancer, John made sure to undergo regular preventative screenings for the sake of his wife and children. One routine examination revealed a small hemorrhoid, so he was scheduled for a colonoscopy hemorrhoidectomy.

On August 31st of 2016, John went to the hospital for what they believed would be a simple, straightforward procedure. So simple, in fact, they could have the surgery done and return home the same day. While everything seemed fine the evening after the surgery, John's condition quickly worsened. He doubled over in agony, despite a high tolerance for pain. And the pain was getting worse — John was having severe groin inflammation, and fever. There was a point where the nurse couldn't even get a temperature or blood pressure on him.

Turns out it was a flesh eating infection, traveling like wildfire through John's body and eating him up alive. At the time, Christine had no idea that her husband's white cell count was going through the roof indicating that he had a severe life-threatening infection. While the doctors came and evaluated John, they provided few answers with regard to what was going on.

Throughout the night and into the next day, John's condition worsened to the point that he could no longer breathe. Despite his deteriorating condition, the source of the infection was never discovered. Three days later, John was dead. No explanation from his surgeon, or plan for an autopsy. Christine had to pay to have a private autopsy performed. Zero accountability.

"John's life will not be so easily dismissed."

Reeling from the loss, Christine tried everything in her power to get answers for herself and her children. But nobody at the hospital — neither the doctors, the nurses, nor the admins — gave her any information on what went so horribly wrong. Shut down and dismissed at every turn, Christine refused to let her husband's life be so easily dismissed. "I want to sit across the table from those doctors, and I want them to look at my face," she said.

After two years of speaking to over 35 attorneys from Florida to New York, Christine finally found Morgan & Morgan. With us, she got the answers she wanted and accountability she was looking for. She now has the closure she needs to start rebuilding her life.

A Parent's Love — The Strongest Investigator

It's every parent's nightmare to get a call informing them their child's in the hospital due to a serious car accident. It's even worse when key details that should be immediately clear and transparent — such as who was driving and what caused the accident — are instead unclear.

An only child, Dakota excelled in both academics and athletics, especially everything in relation to health and nutrition. He was even starting to get into archery. Just as Dakota was about to start his third year at Murray State University, however, a car accident left him with multiple broken bones, a laceration to his spleen, and a stroke that would change his life forever.

In the weeks afterward, Dakota's parents never left the side of their comatose son.

They had no idea what had happened in the accident or what the final outcome would be from the stroke. Even after finally receiving the police report and reading through it, Dakota's parents still had a lot of unanswered questions. Who was driving? How did the accident happen?

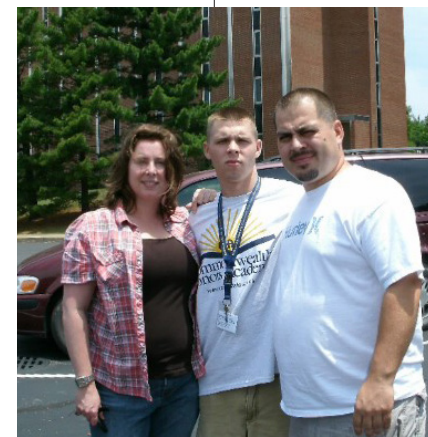

To get to the bottom of it, they knew they needed an attorney from a big firm that would put its full weight behind Dakota and not be afraid to step on toes to get things done. That's when they turned to Morgan & Morgan. "Morgan & Morgan has a lot of attorneys. They have a lot of resources and a lot of money to put behind you, and that's what it takes if you want to win your case."

Over the course of the case, Morgan & Morgan used its investigative resources to figure out what had caused the accident, including vehicle speeds. The team also spared no expense in getting multiple doctors and medical specialists to evaluate the extent of Dakota's injuries, which included problems with speech and weakness in his right side. Given the extent of the damage, doctors predicted Dakota would always require some form of assistance.

Four and a half years later, Morgan & Morgan successfully reached a settlement and made sure Dakota was taken care of for life. Now 26, Dakota has a future where he has the necessary means to provide for himself and the care that he needs.

"There were a lot of unanswered questions, and we needed somebody to get to the bottom of it."

DAWN

A Long Detour to Help and Healing

Insurance is the kind of thing we expect we'll never need. In the rare case we do, it's expected to work and help cover our damages without much fanfare. In Dawn's case, however, she had to fight a two-front battle with both her auto and medical insurance — all while fighting to recover from extensive injuries and multiple surgical procedures.

Dawn was driving to Orlando for work when she was rear-ended by a car traveling at 70 MPH. The impact was so severe that she ended up in the median, her car spun around facing the opposite direction.

That was just the beginning. In the aftermath of the crash, Dawn underwent a treatment plan that initially included physical therapy, massage therapy, pain management injections, and steroid injections to alleviate the swelling and discomfort.

However, nothing was working. After seeing a neurosurgeon, Dawn learned that she had two herniated discs that were pinching on her nerves, causing numbness and tingling in her arms. After getting a posterior osteotomy — a surgical procedure to remove some of the bone tissue in her neck — the pain and discomfort went from bad to worse. Due to her injuries, Dawn was unable to enjoy a lot of the normal activities she used to do. Before the accident, she was active and loved boating, roller coasters, and hanging out with her kids. After the accident, however, even simple acts like sleeping and turning her head were difficult.

That's when Dawn decided to have another procedure, this time a double fusion neck surgery.

After trying to avoid major surgery at all costs, Dawn was angry and frustrated at having to undergo surgery for something that she had no control over. "I was just sitting there waiting for traffic to clear and some guy wasn't paying attention and hit me going nearly 70 miles an hour. I've never had a broken bone in my life. I've never spent time in the hospital other than having my children. It's scary."

In addition to the stress of having to undergo multiple surgical procedures, Dawn also had to juggle a full-time job, husband, and active kids — plus try to navigate both medical and auto insurance. All the while, bills kept piling up.

Thankfully, after reaching out to Morgan & Morgan, Dawn found that a huge weight was lifted off her shoulders. Her attorney was able to make sure that she got reimbursed for her vehicle that was totaled in the accident, and they played a key role in helping Dawn navigate any interactions involving the insurance companies. She finally had a professional team in her corner who was fighting for the best interests of her and her family. Once the case was resolved, Dawn finally felt like she could move on from the horrible memories of the past and make new ones with her family.

MONTGOMERY

Peace of Mind for the Future

In today's working world, employee loyalty can be a rare thing, especially employees who dedicate decades of their lives to the same company. Given this rarity, it's only natural to expect that when a career-ending injury happens, workers' comp should kick in without a hitch. Regrettably, that wasn't the case with Montgomery.

At the end of a regular day working as a lineman, Montgomery bent over to pull a pump out of a manhole — that's when he felt his back pop. While he didn't realize it then, that moment marked the end of his career.

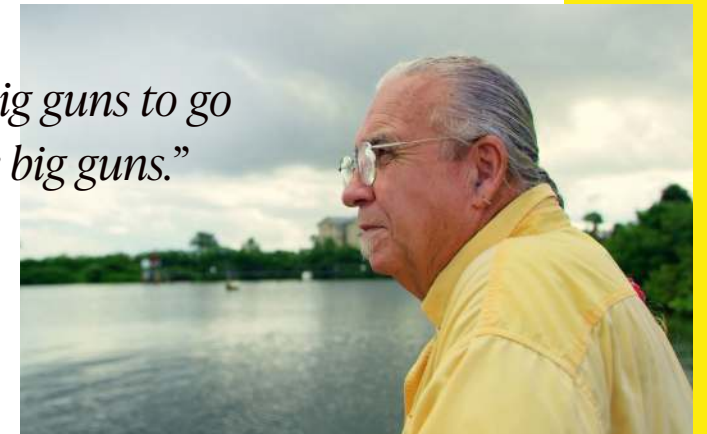

After working at the same company for almost 40 years, Montgomery believed that things would be fine after his injury. "I thought that after putting in all that time, the company would take care of me."

Unfortunately, that was not the case. After the company decided to fire him, Montgomery went on workman's comp. He was asked to fill out multiple forms, visit doctors, get x-rays, and more. To this day, he still remembers the way he was treated — the accusations that he was lying and that he shouldn't be in pain.

Faced with the prospect of not receiving full compensation for the injury he sustained while working, Montgomery decided to fight back. He went to Morgan & Morgan because he knew he needed the biggest and best to win against Goliath. That decision ultimately changed his life.

Thanks to Morgan & Morgan, Montgomery never had to talk to workman's comp representatives again or put up with the accusations. Now that he knows he and his family are taken care of, Montgomery is looking forward to concentrating on himself for a change.

Southern California Gas to Pay $1.8B to Resolve 35,000 Claims Over Gas Leak

Mike Morgan

Frank Petosa

Rene Rocha

CO COUNSEL:

PANISH | SHEA
BOYLE | RAVIPUDI LLP

AMANDA BRONSTAD

Monday’s settlement, one of the largest environmental tort agreements in California, comes as Southern California Gas and its parent company, Sempra, faced trial in the litigation, which alleges the leak at the Aliso Canyon Natural Gas Storage Facility in Los Angeles caused medical problems and property damages for businesses and residents.

Southern California Gas Co. and its parent company, Sempra Energy, will pay $1.8 billion to settle more than 35,000 claims brought by residents and businesses impacted by a 2015 gas leak.

Monday’s settlement, one of the largest environmental tort agreements in California, comes as both companies faced trial in the litigation, which alleges the leak at the Aliso Canyon Natural Gas Storage Facility near the Porter Ranch neighborhood of Los Angeles caused medical problems and damaged property.

“Our goal has always been obtaining justice for the men, women and children who were failed by SoCalGas throughout every turn of this catastrophe,” said lead trial counsel Brian Panish of Los Angeles-based Panish Shea & Boyle in Los Angeles. “This settlement, and the numerous discovery sanctions imposed by the court, hold Sempra and SoCalGas accountable for the Aliso Canyon blowout and their repeated misconduct throughout this litigation. This result could not have been obtained without the commitment, dedication and hard work of the trial team preparing this case for trial.”

The settlement is with lawyers who represent more than 80% of the individual plaintiffs, according to filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. The deal resolves cases brought in California state courts, where a Judicial Council Coordination Proceeding has been pending in Los Angeles County Superior Court.

In a statement, Sempra, denying liability or wrongdoing, said 97% of the plaintiffs must participate in the deal, which requires court approval of the allocation process, by June 1 of next year.

SoCalGas and Sempra also reached agreements in two class actions. According to the SEC filings, they agreed to pay $40 million to settle one case, which involved the owners and renters of 23,000 properties. In the other, brought by businesses in the area, they agreed to pay $100,000, in exchange for dismissal of the claims.

“These agreements are an important milestone that will help the community and our company work toward putting this difficult chapter behind us,” said Scott Drury, CEO of Southern California Gas, in a prepared statement Monday. “In the years since the leak, SoCalGas has worked alongside regulators, technical experts and our neighbors to enhance safety at all our underground storage facilities and our engagement with the community. As a result, our storage facilities operate by what regulators and experts have called some of the most rigorous safety standards in the country.”

Sempra said it anticipated recording an after-tax charge of $1.1 billion this month, but ratepayers will not have to pay settlement costs.

The agreements do not include settlement of a California Public Utilities Commission investigation or some civil lawsuits, including one alleging violation of California’s Proposition 65, as well as shareholder actions.

In 2016, nearly 100,000 tons of methane spewed into the air for 118 days. It’s the largest natural gas leak in U.S. history.

The litigation also is the largest potential asset for the bankruptcy estate of Girardi Keese, the Los Angeles law firm of Tom Girardi, whose career collapsed after a federal judge in Chicago last December issued a $2 million contempt order against him over missing client funds in litigation over the 2018 crash of Lion Air 610.

Both Girardi and his firm are in Chapter 7 bankruptcy proceedings, but, before its downfall, Girardi Keese represented 8,200 clients with gas leak claims. Litigation finance firms have staked claims on the potential fees to come out of a settlement of the gas leak cases, as has the trustee of the Girardi Keese bankruptcy, Elissa Miller.

On Jan. 25, Miller sued another law firm, Abir Cohen Treyzon Salo, for attempting to solicit Girardi Keese’s gas leak clients. She also transferred Girardi Keese’s gas leak cases to James Frantz of Frantz Law Group in San Diego. Under an agreement, Frantz Law Group is set to receive 45% of the fees, while the trustee gets 55%.

Jury Awards $120M in GRU Crash That Left Man Paralyzed

The Gainesville Sun | Gainesville.com

CINDY SWIRKO

An Alachua County man was awarded $120 million Thursday by a jury in a lawsuit over a crash involving a Gainesville Regional Utilities employee.

Jacob T. Rodgers won the award against the city of Gainesville for a 2015 crash in which GRU employee William Stormant, driving a city vehicle, ran through a stop sign and slammed into a pickup truck in which Rodgers was a passenger.

Jurors awarded Rodgers more than $16 million for the expenses, loss of income, mental anguish and other factors that he has already incurred and more than $103 million for future expenses and losses, the verdict form shows.

However, the principle of sovereign immunity in holding government agencies liable in lawsuits caps payout at $200,000.

Florida Statute 768.28 also states that a claim for an amount above that can be made through the Florida Legislature.

Morgan & Morgan, the law firm representing Rodgers, claimed Stormant was negligent in causing the crash and presented medical records and testimony from doctors.

The city maintained that Rodgers was not wearing a seat belt and that his injuries would have been less severe if he had.

Also, the city contended that the driver in the car in which Rodgers was a passenger was speeding and that Rodgers' injuries were caused in part by that negligence.

But the jury in Alachua County Circuit Court attributed 100% of the negligence to Stormant after a four-day trial that ended Thursday night.

Rodgers is paralyzed from the chest down, Morgan & Morgan attorney Jeff Humphries said in an email.

"(Rodgers) can and wants to work. After his injury, he continued his studies at Santa Fe College," Humphries said. "He has an extensive family and they all attended the trial the whole week."

City spokeswoman Rossana Passaniti said in an email that the city has money in reserve for settlements and judgments. The sovereign immunity cap of $200,000 is the set limit, she added.

Humphries said he will wait to determine whether to file with the legislature until a deadline has passed for an appeal of the verdict by the city.

Pilot Files Intellectual Property Lawsuit Against Delta

JULY 14, 2021

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

KELLY YAMANOUCI

A pilot has filed suit against Delta Air Lines, alleging the company stole his idea for a text messaging platform used by crews.

The messaging app, which was rolled out in 2018, is used by gate agents, flight dispatchers, pilots, flight attendants and other workers who hustle to get planes out on time. They text updates on the status of everything from cleaning, catering, fueling and loading bags.

It replaced a decades-old mish-mash of communications by two-way radios, jetway phones, word of mouth and jaunts down the jet bridge to relay messages, according to Delta.

The suit by pilot Craig Alexander was filed in DeKalb County state court. In it, he says he shared his idea for a crew messaging app with the company before Delta's app was introduced. The complaint names Delta, CEO Ed Bastian, chief information officer Rahul Samant and other executives as defendants.

▼ ATTORNEY

Keenan Nix

The lawsuit is seeking damages estimated at more than $1 billion for "stolen trade secrets and the unjust enrichment to Delta."

"Captain Alexander spent countless hours and more than $100,000 of his own money developing this innovative, game-changing communications platform for Delta, only to have his own employer steal it right out from under him like a thief in the night," Morgan & Morgan attorneys John Morgan and Keenan Nix said in a written statement.

Delta, for its part, issued a statement saying: "While we take the allegations specified in Mr. Alexander's Complaint seriously, they are not an accurate or fair description of Delta's development of its internal crew messaging platform."

Alexander, a Delta first officer on the Boeing 767 and 757, alleges he originally designed a text messaging system called "QrewLive" for crew members to resolve pre-flight departure issues. He said he presented it to Delta executives over several years, starting in 2014.

He alleges he received "verbal assurances that Delta would purchase his innovative text messaging platform."

But, in 2017, Delta told him the text messaging system did not fit its needs.

The following year, Delta announced the launch of its Flight Family Communication app.

Alexander alleges the Delta platform was developed by using QrewLive, "even though the entire project was subject to a confidential non-disclosure agreement."

The complaint also alleges the Flight Family Communication app is saving Delta "hundreds of millions of dollars per year" by increasing on-time departures.

In 2018, Delta announced it had seen a 65% increase in its ability to get time-crunched flights out on time when there were circumstances such as late-arriving aircraft.

On an average day, Delta said about 11,000 messages were sent using the Flight Family Communication platform – and even more when bad weather disrupts flights.

Delta said the app was one of a number of digital tools it had rolled out for employees over a couple of years, including a handheld tool for gate agents to help customers with seat changes and rebookings, handheld devices for flight attendants and a weather app for pilots.

Managing Partner, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia offices

Mike has tremendous passion for helping individuals and families who feel powerless against large corporations. His vision, paired with an incredibly thoughtful and innovative approach, allows him to hold multi-billion-dollar corporations accountable for damages when they place profits over safety.

Mike is the General of our Complex Litigation Department. Be it product liability cases, mass tort, environmental or our recently created public client practice, Mike always takes a leadership role, often making incredibly tough decisions regarding the course of high-stakes litigation. Mike holds an impressive track record of exceptional settlements that can be attributed to his thoughtful approach, outstanding communication skills, and tenacious advocacy. He digs into cases with his whole heart and works collaboratively with clients to fight to get the best results. Outside of client work, Mike gives back by supporting several charities including Hope Partnership, The Sharing Center, Coalition for the Homeless, Second Harvest and the Ronald McDonald House, with a focus on keeping families safely together in the face of homelessness and adversity.

Clients know that when they have Mike on their side, they have a remarkably intelligent advocate who'll treat their cases as if their dangers threaten his own family. Mike knows his work forces companies to make their products and practices safer, and he takes this challenge personally.

James Young

THE WHISTLEBLOWER ATTORNEY

Attorney, Complex Litigation Group

by Juan Martinez
Attorney, Complex Litigation Group

James is the colleague everyone goes to when they have a problem to solve. An intellectually curious person, he's the kind of attorney who knows a little about everything and has a lot of tools in his legal toolbox. In that sense, he's a connector — he has an uncanny ability to connect various people and resources together in order to get the best outcome. James adores a good challenge — to take a complex problem and dig deep to find an elegant solution. This is what makes James an extraordinary whistleblower attorney.

Having known James for years before I came to Morgan & Morgan, I know him to be a best-in-class lawyer and dedicated husband and father. He can be found on the weekends power washing the fence around his home or rooting for Florida State, the arch-rival of James's alma mater University of Florida, where his daughter is currently studying. James takes that same level of commitment into his work with his colleagues at the firm.

Anyone who works with James can tell that at his heart, he's motivated by public service and a strong desire to hold bad actors accountable. He's dedicated to holding truth to power and wants to make sure that these large companies are keeping their word and are good stewards of society.

Kelli Lester

COMPASSIONATE ADVOCACY

Managing Partner, Nashville & Bowling Green

by Matt Morgan
Attorney, Managing Partner

Kelli is a top personal injury attorney at our firm. Never one to back down from a challenge, she is the managing partner of our Nashville and Bowling Green offices and strikes a leadership role no matter which office she's in. Her attention to detail, organizational skills, innovative approach, and tenacious and compassionate advocacy for her clients all set her apart from her peers.

Having grown up in a small southern town, Kelli is driven to help everyday people who've been taken advantage of by insurance companies. Day in and day out, she fights tirelessly for her clients who have been injured due to negligence.

Outside of practicing law, Kelli gives back to her community through numerous charities, including St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Megan's Groceries, and various other outreach programs affiliated with her alma mater, Western Kentucky University. Kelli supports her community with the same passion she dedicates to raising her two young daughters, and she strives every day to make the world better for her clients and family.

Miguel A. Dominguez

THE ATTORNEY ACTIVIST

Partner, Civil Litigation

by Evan Rosenberg
Attorney, Civil Litigation

When it comes to fighting for his clients, Miguel is a bulldog both in and out of the courtroom — he's willing to dig deep and doesn't stop until he gets to the ultimate resolution in every case. Growing up in the South Bronx, Miguel's experience drives him to give back by fighting for people being bullied and taken advantage of.

After starting his career in Atlanta as a social worker serving the mentally-ill and homeless, Miguel has carved out a reputation for turning traditionally under-valued personal injury, negligent security, and civil rights cases into six- and seven-figure judgments. His secret weapon is his own personal hardships, which allow him to empathize with his clients' struggles in a meaningful way and give a voice to the voiceless.

What's even more impressive is that despite his success and status, Miguel still finds time to lend his skills and experience to provide pro bono legal services to youth offenders. Not only is he passionate toward his clients in the courtroom; he's a leader of his community who's constantly challenging young people to dream beyond their immediate circumstances.

Angeli Murthy

A TENACIOUS FIGHTER

Attorney, Labor & Employment

Attorney & Co-Chair, Employee Rights Group

Since joining Morgan & Morgan in 2011, Angeli has brought a unique, creative, sharp perspective to employment law, having represented some of America's largest corporations prior to coming to our firm.

Jack Cook

THE MODEL ATTORNEY

Partner, Medical Malpractice

by Keith Mitnick

Senior Trial Lawyer

If I were to design an attorney in a lab, I'd want to include Jack Cook's DNA in the mix. He is what a med-mal trial attorney should be.

He has mastered the art of distilling complex medical issues down to their essence, so jurors can see the light. He talks to clients and jurors the same way he would to his family, with respect, clarity and sincerity.

Above all, Jack stands out for how much he cares. He never forgets the client is what it is all about. He never forgets their suffering. He never forgets their right to be kept informed. He never forgets their need for justice. For Jack, it's not about ego, it's a calling.

As a Marine veteran, it is clear Jack translates his battle-earned sense of purpose, sacrifice, and grit into his work as a trial lawyer. He fights for clients like he did for his country, with all his might to do what is right.

I think the world of Jack. I'd pick him to represent my family.

Here are all the ways we can help.

It's a lot.

Auto Accidents

Our attorneys have recovered billions of dollars for those whom insurance companies may otherwise have taken advantage of. We have a reputation for turning insufficient pre-trial offers into large jury verdicts for victims of car, truck, motorcycle, boat, and other motor vehicle accidents.

Our lawyers have decades of experience helping injured drivers and passengers navigate every step of the post-accident process, fighting to protect them from some of America's biggest bullies, insurance companies. We are able to bring the full weight of the firm against those big corporations to secure damages for the clients that have sometimes suffered life-changing harm.

Workers' Compensation

Workers' compensation is designed to help employees who have been injured on the job receive income quickly. In exchange, workers' compensation limits the liability of the employer and coworkers. This system doesn't always work as it should. Sometimes claims are unjustly denied or underpaid, and injured employees must appeal the decision and wait months to get the money they're entitled to and desperately need.

Our workers' compensation attorneys help those facing these hurdles navigate the various steps in the often frustrating workers' compensation process.

Premises Liability

Property owners have an obligation to keep their premises safe. An unaddressed spill, faulty railing, or another hazard can lead to a Slip & Fall accident. The victims of these accidents are left to deal not only with physical and emotional pain but also medical bills and other expenses.

Our attorneys fight to protect the rights of Slip & Fall victims as well as victims of robbery, assault, and other acts due to negligent security or poor safety measures. When property owners fail to maintain safe premises, our attorneys fight to hold them accountable.

Wrongful Death

No matter the cause, losing a loved one is devastating. But when a death is the result of negligence, it adds more weight to an already traumatic circumstance. Our attorneys help survivors pursue compensation to cover the considerable financial difficulties — as well as pain and suffering — that may arise as a result of a loved one's passing.

Nothing can replace a lost loved one, but our attorneys can assist survivors in getting the damages they deserve.

Birth Injuries

When a newborn suffers a birth injury due to a doctor's negligence, their lives are affected in a profound way. Medical procedures, special schooling and services, and a variety of other needs can create a financial and emotional strain for the family. Our lawyers have decades of experience handling every aspect of birth injury claims — seeing families through the difficult process of fighting for the compensation that will help them cover these bills and the emotional toll.

Fire Injuries

Some of the worst injuries out there — the ones that cause irreparable harm and change lives in unimaginable ways — are burn and fire injuries. Our attorneys have a proven track record of winning compensation for victims of life-shattering accidents stemming from house fires, chemical fires, workplace accidents, electrical fires, and other types of burns. We aggressively advocate for clients who have faced massive medical bills, permanently altered life situations, and profound pain and suffering due to the negligence of others.

Nursing Home Abuse

When someone entrusts the care of a loved one to a nursing home, they expect quality care from a knowledgeable staff in safe conditions. Unfortunately, some nursing homes value their bottom line over quality of care, which can result in staff neglecting and abusing patients. This primarily happens when facilities are understaffed or hire workers who are not qualified or properly trained to care for the elderly.

Our experienced nursing home abuse attorneys work to help the victims of abuse and neglect secure justice. We fight for compensation for the pain and suffering sustained and hold the nursing home and retirement facility accountable.

Labor & Employment

Our Employment Rights Group helps employees who face wage theft, employer retaliation, denial of leave, workplace bias, harassment, and other issues that arise in the workplace. Our attorneys and support staff advocate for clients in cases involving a basket of federal, state, and local employment laws, including the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Our team has recovered millions of dollars for our clients, helping provide some measure of relief in the face of difficult circumstances.

Insurance Disputes

Many individuals and businesses contribute to life, disability and property insurance for years or even decades, only to have the insurance companies attempt to deny, delay or lowball their claim when they need it most. Our Insurance Recovery Group helps policyholders experiencing devastating events, whether that’s the loss of a loved one, a debilitating injury or illness or homes and properties in desperate need of repair in the aftermath of hurricanes, tropical storms and other catastrophic events.

Our attorneys fight on behalf of these families to pursue the income they need in order to achieve a sense of normalcy in their lives.

Social Security Disability

For people who become disabled and can no longer work, Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits can be an important source of income. However, the majority of people who apply for SSDI benefits are initially denied, which is often a disheartening and potentially frightening experience.

Our attorneys help those who need SSDI benefits receive the compensation they’re entitled to. Additionally, our law firm helps parents of disabled adult children receive benefits for the care of their child and helps disabled widows and widowers receive benefits that can make their lives easier.

Medical Malpractice

When medical professionals don’t provide acceptable treatment, our attorneys are here to help the victims. Medical malpractice can include, but is not limited to: Making the wrong diagnosis, administering the wrong drug, conducting the wrong surgery, and even leaving surgical equipment in a patient’s body during surgery.

Our medical malpractice attorneys fight for victims of medical negligence.

Mesothelioma

Mesothelioma is a fatal cancer caused by asbestos exposure. It’s often seen in people who’ve worked in the railroad, shipbuilding, or other manufacturing industries — as well as those who have served in the military. Generally, mesothelioma occurs when a company or organization knew asbestos was dangerous, but allowed its use in electrical wires, pipes, and other equipment anyway.

Our lawyers help victims and their families hold these wrongdoers accountable. The long latency period of mesothelioma development presents a significant challenge for our attorneys, who must identify when and where someone was exposed to asbestos, even though it likely happened decades ago. Despite this challenge, our legal team has been able to help many mesothelioma victims and their families recover compensation for the injustice perpetrated against them.

Business Litigation

Business disputes are common, but not all businesses and individuals can afford the high hourly rates that traditional commercial law firms charge. By working on a contingency-fee basis, our Business Trial Group provides businesses with affordable, high-quality legal representation.

Claims involving contracts, construction, real estate, securities fraud, intellectual property, and other disputes are no-risk, high-reward for our clients.

Government Action & Whistleblower Claims

Morgan & Morgan’s Government Action division works with local and state governments to combat fraud, pollution, business misconduct, and other issues that affect entire locales. Since government entities don’t typically have the capability to take on private companies and their veteran legal teams, we put our plentiful resources and decades of experience to work on their behalf. We fight to recover full compensation and restore the community.

Billions of taxpayer dollars are lost to fraud every year, but the False Claims Act allows private citizens to file civil lawsuits on behalf of the government against entities defrauding government programs — and receive a portion of the funds the government recovers. Our whistleblower team works to ensure that those who come forward are able to right the wrongs they’ve witnessed and recover compensation for their bravery. The best part? We operate on a contingency fee, so there’s never any cost or risk to taxpayers.

Headed by attorney James D. Young, our Government Action and Whistleblower team includes FBI Special Agents, Assistant United States Attorneys, and even former attorneys general. This team has a robust history of successful cases under its belt, from filing opioid lawsuits on behalf of 17 governments in West Virginia to representing dozens of Florida cities, counties, and school boards after the 2010 Deepwater Horizon oil spill. Everything we do is backed by a wide variety of experience, and we’re ready to take on the next case no matter how great the challenge.

Civil Rights

Fighting against the abuse of power is a core tenet of our Civil Rights Group. All people have the right to freedom from excessive force, unreasonable searches and seizures, and cruel and unusual punishment.

Our attorneys represent victims of police brutality and wrongful imprisonment, including the victims of police shootings. Additionally, we represent prison inmates who have been physically and sexually abused or assaulted by staff. Our Civil Rights Group also handles cases involving the loved ones of prisoners who have committed suicide, and those injured or killed when their medical needs were neglected.

Product Liability

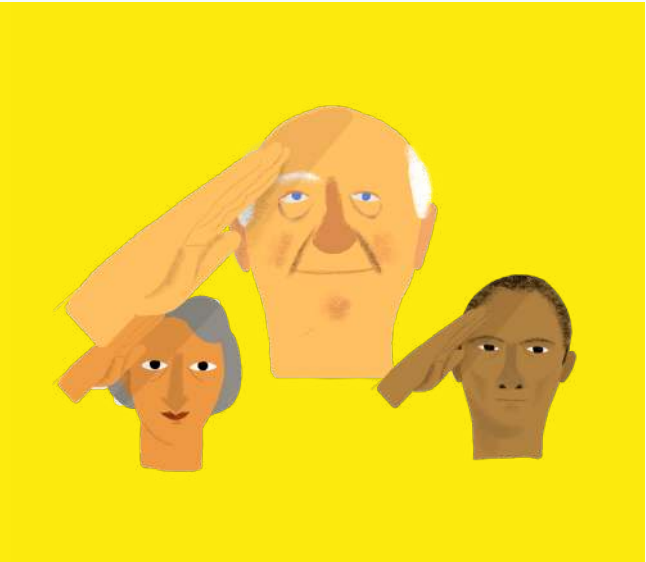

People buy products with the expectation that they’re safe and will work as advertised. Sometimes, however, consumers buy products that, at best, don’t do what they’re supposed to, and, at worst, lead to injury or even death.

Our product liability lawyers handle cases in which manufacturing defects, design defects, or improper warning labels lead to injury. If the defect in question is pervasive and affects many consumers in a similar way, we are prepared to launch a mass tort to compensate the product’s victims and hold the negligent manufacturer accountable.

Veterans’ Benefits

Military veterans who put their lives on the line for our country are eligible for disability benefits if they sustained an injury during their service that lingers past their discharge. However, many veterans’ disability claims are initially denied.

Our veterans’ benefits attorneys help veterans navigate the application and appeals process so they can receive the benefits they deserve. In addition to disability, our attorneys help veterans and their families receive survivor benefits, vocational rehabilitation, employment benefits, educational benefits, life insurance, healthcare, home loans, and pension benefits.

Class-Actions, Mass Torts & Arbitration

Morgan & Morgan attorneys have decades of experience in resolving large, complex disputes such as class actions and mass torts and arbitration. We are experts at efficiently handling the complexities and substantial administrative details that are the hallmark of extensive, complicated actions. These cases frequently include hundreds of parties, large groups of lawyers, multiple jurisdictions and hundreds of millions of dollars.

Morgan & Morgan has led the way on many impactful class action lawsuits and mass torts. Notably, spearheaded by award-winning attorney John Yanchunis, the firm filed the largest-ever class action lawsuit against Yahoo over a series of data breaches that leaked the personal information of all three billion of the company’s users. Additionally, our mass tort attorneys are working to protect the rights of servicemen and women who were victimized by 3M’s defective Combat Arms Earplugs (Version 2 - CAEv2). We are also handling cases involving nicotine addiction in minors (JUUL), crop damage (dicamba), eye disease (Elmiron), and many others.

Toxics & Environmental NEW!

Corporations are the biggest polluters in the world today. They produce the bulk of emissions and chemicals that end up in our air, ground, and water. It takes a big law firm to take on big polluters. Our Toxics and Environmental Litigation Group is proud to fight for the planet.

Based in Denver, Colorado, the group is led by nationally-renowned environmental lawyer Kevin Hannon. Kevin has been practicing environmental law for more than three decades. Kevin knows firsthand what it takes to successfully prosecute environmental claims against corporate polluters that include 3M, Saint Gobain, DuPont, ExxonMobil, Suncor Energy Inc., and Lockheed Martin. Kevin is moving Morgan & Morgan’s environmental practice forward with the highest quality legal and science work, building on Morgan & Morgan’s previous work in cases involving matters such as the Deepwater Horizon oil spill, Tangelo Park chemical exposure, the Mosaic sinkhole, Monsanto’s Roundup, and asbestos companies.

M&M In The Community

Morgan & Morgan has been protecting individuals and their families for over three decades, and even as we've expanded our reach nationwide, we remain dedicated to each community we operate in. We recognize our responsibility to the cities and towns we call home, and we take part in aiding their citizens — an extension of our own family.

Here are some of the causes Morgan & Morgan supports to help local communities thrive.

Florida For A Fair Wage

John Morgan is the Chairman of Florida for a Fair Wage, the committee dedicated to raising Florida’s minimum wage to $15 per hour. He donated the majority of the $4.15 million that the group raised to get the amendment onto the ballot for 2020, and the organization was able to gather numerous signatures in support. The amendment, which passed on November 9th, 2020, will gradually raise Florida’s minimum wage from $10 in 2021 to $15 in 2026.

Harbor House Domestic Abuse Shelter

Everyone deserves a safe place where they can be protected from violence. Unfortunately, there is limited room in domestic abuse shelters, and these spaces are sometimes closed down due to hazardous conditions. By partnering with the Harbor House Domestic Abuse Shelter, we’ve created more safe space for those who need it.

The Morgan & Morgan Home — A Safe Haven for Families is a 27,500-square-foot, 20-room facility that houses 120 beds, two kitchens, and two bulletproof safe rooms. John and Ultima Morgan donated $1 million of the $7.4 million it cost to build the facility.

Community Bail Fund

The criminal justice system is far from a level playing field, and the odds are often stacked against low-level, nonviolent offenders — many of whom cannot afford to post bail. Those who can’t afford bail are incarcerated up until their trial. That means they aren’t able to go to work or pay their rent, which could result in job loss and even homelessness. The bail system has a disproportionately negative effect on low-income people. That’s why Matt Morgan launched the Community Bail Fund in February 2020. The Fund aims to help low-level, nonviolent offenders get released on bail before their trial so they can avoid the potentially life-altering obstacles of incarceration.

The Morgan family has pledged to match every dollar donated to the Community Bail Fund up to $250,000. Since inception we have assisted over 300 Floridians whose bonds totaled more than $484,000.

Morgan & Morgan Hunger Relief Center

The Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida aims to raise public awareness of hunger and poverty by developing strategies for individual counties. The organization collects and distributes food to over 500 nonprofit partners throughout Central Florida.

Our firm has long respected and admired the Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida’s efforts to end hunger, so in 2013, we committed to building them a new food storage facility.

The 100,000-square-foot facility, dubbed the Morgan & Morgan Hunger Relief Center, is equipped to handle millions of pounds of food that would otherwise be turned away due to overflow. We provided coolers, freezers, and infrastructure that allowed for significantly more room for storage.

John and Ultima Morgan donated $2 million to the cause, and an estimated $1.4 billion in food will be stored there over the next 20 years.

For The People Scholarship

Our “For The People” philosophy drives everything we do, and we encourage the next generation of young lawyers to apply that same mindset to their legal careers. As long as there are bullies — greedy corporations, uncooperative insurance companies, and unjust employers — the people will need us on their side.

We created the For The People Scholarship to support aspiring lawyers who strive to fight for those in need. It represents our commitment to ideals like charity, public service, and giving back to the community. We award this $5,000 scholarship annually to the enrolled law school student (or accepted student) who best displays their drive to help the people.

Florida Rights Restoration Coalition

In May 2020, a federal court ruling cleared the way for hundreds of thousands of formerly convicted individuals to vote in Florida. However, a recent decision by the Supreme Court has blocked this ruling and may silence these Floridians’ voices.

That’s why we supported the Florida Rights Restoration Coalition, which helped previously convicted citizens smoothly and successfully regain voting rights. Donating to the Florida Rights Restoration Coalition Fines and Fees Fund meant helping these individuals get through the financial barriers between them and the political system so their voices could be heard.

Make-A-Wish’s Orlando Walk For Wishes

Since 1980, the Make-A-Wish Foundation has been making dreams come true for children with life- threatening conditions. Make-A-Wish Central and Northern Florida has granted thousands of wishes since 1994, and the Morgan family is proud to be a sponsor.

The Orlando Walk for Wishes is an annual charity walk to raise funds for Make-A-Wish Central and Northern Florida. Matt Morgan sponsors the walk every year, with 2021 marking the 14th iteration. As both a father and a lifelong Orlando resident, this cause is particularly special to Matt.

Florida For Care - Medical Marijuana

Medical marijuana legalization is especially personal for the Morgans — it has helped both John’s father and brother with their conditions. As powerful pain medications contribute to widespread addiction as well as harmful side effects, medical marijuana has surfaced as a safer alternative for alleviating or reducing a range of symptoms. That’s why we joined United for Care’s fight for medical marijuana legalization in 2013.

We set out to collect enough signatures (over 700,000) to get medical marijuana legalization on the 2014 ballot in Florida. Although it made the ballot, the votes fell just 2% shy of the necessary 60%. We tried again in 2016 with even more support, and the bill passed with 71% of the necessary votes. Although it took almost four years and millions of dollars, we were able to help get medical marijuana legalized in Florida.

John Morgan is affectionately known in Florida as “Pot Daddy.” We couldn’t pass up the opportunity to make some fun swag with the moniker.

Now available at the official M&M swag shop.

Nationwide Disaster Relief

When disasters or crises strike, we're there for the affected communities. We were there in the aftermath of Fultondale, Alabama and Nashville, Tennessee tornadoes, Hurricane Ida, Laura and Sally, the Texas winter freeze, Surfside building collapse, and the Nashville bombing to distribute essential supplies and help people get back on their feet.

Coalition For The Homeless

The Coalition for the Homeless of Central Florida is a social services organization that feeds and shelters the homeless — and prevents homelessness — providing safe shelter and meals for 500 people and drop-in services for up to 100 unsheltered homeless individuals per day.

Through the pandemic, the need for the Coalition's services skyrocketed, but the organization's funds ran low. On Veterans Day, Matt Morgan launched a $100,000 matching campaign to combat the problem. With the help of many compassionate individuals, we were able to match $100,000 to $100,000 donated and exceed our goal of $200,000.

As a result, the Coalition was able to feed, shelter and prevent homelessness into the holidays, providing a week of meals for 80,000 homeless children or a full day of services to 8,000 homeless adults. That's what we call justice for the people.

"In downtown Orlando, all one needs to do is walk around the streets to know there's a problem, and it's really difficult for us, a family that has been so blessed, to walk by and not do anything about it."

The Perfect Pair:
America's Largest PI Firm Partners
with the Country's Biggest College Athletes

As of July 1, 2021, student-athletes finally have the much-deserved opportunity to financially benefit from their athletic abilities — something they weren't able to do before. NCAA and state laws now allow students to profit from their personas, a term in advertising called "NIL" (Name, Image and Likeness). Up until now, NIL has only pertained to professional athletes. The new presence of collegiate NIL has leveled the playing field between student-athletes and the NCAA, whose net profit (pun intended) is in the billions.

NIL

noun

Refers to the Name, Image and Likeness (NIL) of an individual with a large fanbase who is able to sell their persona for profit.

NIL is long overdue. And Morgan & Morgan was happy to be on the leading-edge of college NIL advertising, giving student-athletes the ability to profit from their name, image, and likeness. We were the first to put college players in their official game uniforms on billboards, the first to put college players on digital boards in New York's Times Square, and the first to sign deals with potential top 5 NFL draft picks Evan Neal & Jordan Davis.

Our Times Square takeover put 10 Kentucky Wildcats in the middle of the New York eye, providing top athletes such as TyTy Washington with their first opportunity to get paid — right before the first jump ball of the 2021–2022 season. Featuring big players in big places has also introduced a special touch to our Size Matters campaign.

Not only are we excited to put college athletes in the limelight — they're excited, too. Jordan Davis tweeted, "Excited to team up with @ForThePeople, check me out on some of their billboards around Georgia! #NIL #ad."

Partnering with college athletes enables us to relate to fans and reach potential clients in a special way, reaching them through means they've never seen before. NIL allows us a platform to benefit both parties mutually not only through social media but also larger-than-life marketing like billboards and truck wraps, something that many other companies in the NIL space just can't offer.

Our goal for 2022 is to expand these efforts across our markets, partnering with female college athletes and other sports stars outside of football/basketball as we continue to set the standard for NIL marketing.

The Morgan Connection, Founder

One of my favorite initiatives at Morgan & Morgan is The Morgan Connection, our lawyer-to-lawyer referral network. The Morgan Connection acts as a bridge between our firm and our referral partners, allowing them to maximize their income and capitalize on the opportunity to help more people in need.

In these situations, Morgan & Morgan is ready to fill the gap, with over 50 practice areas and more than 800 attorneys providing partners with expert legal representation while they receive a referral or co-counsel fee* every time we win a settlement.

I'm excited to see how we rise together as a collaborative team, and I'm looking forward to meeting more potential referral partners in person, in the future.

Note: The information in these tables is pulled from a self-reported document. The table contains verdicts and settlements where our clients recovered and excludes those outcomes in which we recovered nothing or the defense prevailed. On that note, this is not an official accounting of all verdicts and settlements. Verdict numbers taken from the report do not always represent an exact number because in some cases, both gross and net verdicts were entered and reported. Additionally, verdict amounts may reflect some combination of damages types, attorneys’ fees, insurance benefits, and taxable costs. Regardless, we have tried to verify data where possible. Some verdict numbers are affected by high-low agreements, bifurcations, and sovereign immunity.
